The Perfect Profile Blue Print

There are more than 350 million professionals on LinkedIn. To stand out, you need to pay great attention to creating a profile. In this section, you'll learn how that's done.

Headline 120 characters

This is the most-important aspect of the profile! Be succinct, creative, and include key terms that make it easy for others to define your industry and your role within.

Name

Include your first, last, and middle name (if applicable). This is not the place for nicknames or humorous references to job titles (such as "sales rockstar" or "developer ninja").

Profile Photo

First impressions matter during business meetings and when people see your profile picture.

Consider your industry in addition to potential consumers and peers to select the appropriate headshot.

Adding a professional photo of yourself on your LinkedIn profile can result in 14 TIMES MORE PROFILE VIEWS!

Dos and don'ts of LinkedIn profile photos

Do's

Get a professional photographer

It's worth the investment since you can use the pictures for multiple social platforms and purposes.

Look personable

You don't have to give a goofy smile but you don't want to appear angry either. When in doubt, ask others to give their opinions before you publish.

Use most of the frame

Your face should be centered, leaving a small space over your head with the picture extending to your shoulders.

Choose a familiar picture

Keep the photo true-to-life. If you wear glasses, have a beard, or often wear a tie, make the profile photo representative of how you normally look at work.

Don'ts

Be professional

LinkedIn is not Facebook. Structure your profile according to how you would act at work.

Balance formality

Don't go overboard yet don't be underdressed in your picture. Let the photo reflect your work attire and mood.

Leave Fido out

It's a cute sentiment, but leave dogs and other pets out of your LinkedIn profile picture.

Keep the background neutral

Don't let the background distract viewers. Choose a neutral and non-busy background.

Summary

Summary 2000 characters max

Write a succinct description, including your present and future business ambitions. Add other points of contact, including mobile number, Twitter URL, email address, etc.

Adding media to the summary supports credibility. Provide links to slides, videos, podcasts, blog posts, and more. Be precise in describing past and current job descriptions. Keep it positive and highlight your skills and accomplishments.

Adding media to your summary gives credibility to your claims about who you say you are and what you do. Screenshots, slideshares, videos, articles that quote you etc.

Experience

Complement resume information with clips from videos, in-article quotes, slides, and other content you created that's pertinent to your professional life.

Try to better intrigue viewers; the longer they view your profile, the better your chances of making a business connection.

Avoid using buzzwords and remember to show (versus tell) about your skills and talents. For example, rather than stating you're a "great salesperson," mention awards received or remarkable sales metrics achieved.

Why You Should Complete Your Profile

Users with complete Profiles are 40 times more likely to receive opportunities through LinkedIn.

The search algorithm seeks and displays results in this order:

- 1 Profile Completeness (100% only)
- 2 Connections in Common (shared)
- 3 Connections by Degree (1st, 2nd, 3rd)
- 4 Groups in Common (shared)

Make sure your profile is complete. If your information is incomplete, you will be invisible regarding searches, which is counterproductive and contrary to using the social platform.

The main reason to complete your Profile is to ensure that you will appear in LinkedIn search results.

How To Outreach for LinkedIn Recommendations

Recommendations add more credibility to your experience and work history.

For ongoing network development, a solid combination of recommendations and skill endorsements can go a long way to successful interactions. Below we have outlined the key stages to obtaining quality recommendations from your past and present clients, colleagues and employers.

Recommendations

VS

Endorsements

Written by other members, recommendations are ways to market your company as well as invite advocacy.

Seen as a high quality trust signal from both LinkedIn and to your profile viewers.

Less specific, endorsements are softer signals of advocacy.

While still important regarding LinkedIn algorithms, endorsements are not as credible or well-sought as written recommendations.

Recommendations

Recommendations are written by other LinkedIn members as a way to recognize or applaud a business partner or colleague. Secure some from a list of your most important and notable past colleagues and employers to add more credibility to your profile.

Aim for between 5 to 10 recommendations. LinkedIn will display the two most recent recommendations received. (See example visual below)

Get up to two recommendations for each of your most important former positions.

6

Be specific in what you want to be recommended for.

We all like reading nice things about ourselves like “Pleasure to work with” but to a hiring manager, reviews of this nature adds little value to your profile.

“ James was a pleasure to work with. His smile made the office a brighter place. ”

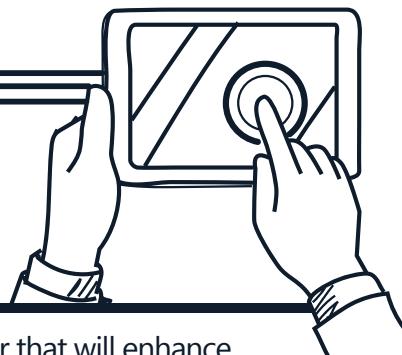

“ James consistently performed and improved many developed new processes within the company. ”

The Anatomy Of Perfect LinkedIn

LinkedIn is introducing more options for optimizing one's profile. Use the following tips to optimize your profile and opportunity to show up in LinkedIn search results.

SEO

1

Your Professional Headline

LinkedIn scans for keywords in your professional headline.

Use standard job titles. Avoid the wacky job titles like "Head of Tea Boy" and go for things that stand out and expands on your job title like...

"Award Winning Sports Nutritionist"

3

Complete your LinkedIn Profile

LinkedIn gives a higher level of prominence to profiles that are 100% completed. A no brainer really!

Fill out every single section and use LinkedIn's help to guide your profile to completion.

Companies

Select "Other" from the drop down menu to add your custom anchor text.

2

Claim your SEO friendly URL

Ok so the SEO benefits of claiming your own URL may be minimal, but it's just good business.

Connecting your LinkedIn profile to your name will make you to be found easier by real connections.

It will also let you add your custom URL to business cards.

4

Use anchor text in links

LinkedIn profiles can have up to three links, including company website and blog.

You can actually change the anchor text to something more descriptive. All you have to do is select the "Other" option.

5

Optimize your job descriptions

Do not keyword stuff, but do have at least one instance of your keyword that you are focusing on.

Take an approach of optimizing around secondary keywords that are still relevant and descriptive of your skill set.

Instead of writing out full paragraphs, use a wide variety of relevant keywords in bullet-pointed lists.

Formatting your descriptions will also increase your profile's scannability.

The screenshot shows a LinkedIn profile for 'Elite Multi-Disciplined Sports Therapist' from 'Elite Sports Tech Ltd'. The job title is displayed prominently at the top of the profile section. Below the job title, there are several greyed-out sections representing other parts of the profile.

6

Optimize your job titles

Optimizing your job titles slightly to include a few keywords is just smart.

Instead of "Sports Therapist" bait search engines by adding something more descriptive like

"Elite Multi-Disciplined Sports Therapist."

8

Promote your LinkedIn profile elsewhere.

Put a link to your LinkedIn profile on your email signature, your Facebook, Twitter, Google+, Crunchbase accounts and any websites you maintain to create inbound links to your profile.

The screenshot shows an email template on a tablet screen. The subject line is 'How to get more endorsements'. The body of the email reads:

Hey [name],

What skills do you want to be endorsed for? I'm going around endorsing people for what skills they want highlighted. It helps you with the job search, believe it or not, as HR reps look for these skill sets on LinkedIn. So figure it makes sense for everyone to help each other. :)

If you get a sec, could you in turn endorse my profile for ONLY these 5 skills:

-[insert skill #1] -[insert skill #2] -[insert skill #3] -[insert skill #4]

Trying to boost these babies to the top. Let me know what you need to be endorsed for.

[insert your name]

[www.LinkedIn.com/in/\[insert your url\]](http://www.LinkedIn.com/in/[insert your url])

7

Get more endorsements

Endorsements help increase the value of your profile.

Some assume that the new LinkedIn How You Rank means that the site is moving toward popularity-based rankings, and endorsements are easily a part of that. It's always good to be prepared, just in case!

Use Publisher

The publisher option is a new feature. It allows you to post articles directly to LinkedIn. This helps you show your expertise and gives the LinkedIn bots more content and information to work with. It shows you're active, and helps your name and face show up in the news feeds of your followers.

The screenshot shows the LinkedIn Publisher interface. Step 2 indicates to message contacts by clicking on the 'Connections' tab, sorting by 'Recent Conversations', and emailing one by one using the template provided.

9

Make sure your profile is visible

It may sound obvious but make sure your profile is switched to public otherwise you will not be seen.

6

Quick LinkedIn Tips To Do Today

Here are bite-sized tips to implement right away to improve your profile and make it more visible to peers and potential consumers.

The best times to post on LinkedIn:

Tuesday and Thursdays, between 7am and 9am local time.

Evernote & LinkedIn integrate. Organize biz cards, LinkedIn info, & notes in one place.

Your profile is 5 Times more likely to be viewed if you join and are active in groups.

Looking for a new job on LinkedIn?

Don't let your boss know; turn off your activity broadcasts.

Censor yourself.

If you wouldn't say it in a job interview, don't say it on in a LinkedIn.

Endorse people you respect. Send a thank you message when someone endorses you.

20 LinkedIn posts per month can help you reach 60% of your unique audience.

Use your LinkedIn profile as a sales tool. Add a short video about your company to your profile.

LinkedIn users who update their profiles regularly get more job offers.

Find your voice. Publishing posts is a great way to showcase your professional knowledge, position yourself as a thought leader in your industry.

7

Keeping Your LinkedIn Profile Secure

With news of so many high-profile data breaches in recent months, it's vital to make sure you know all of the ways to keep your personal LinkedIn account information private.

Automatic checks already protect all LinkedIn accounts, designed to thwart unauthorized sign-in attempts and keep users' data safe. But you can take several additional steps to ensure your account is totally protected and safe.

Update Your Privacy Settings

In addition to the security features LinkedIn have built to protect your information, there are some additional privacy settings you can turn on or off, depending on what you want to share, display, and receive.

Turn your activity broadcasts on or off:

Select what others can see when you've viewed their profile.

Select who can see your connections

If you don't want your connections to see when you make changes to your profile, follow companies or recommend connections, uncheck this option.

You can set your privacy settings to a high level, so when you view other peoples' profiles, you are displayed to them as an "anonymous LinkedIn member".

You can share your connections' names with your other first degree connections, or you can make your connections list visible only to you.

Two-Step Verification

Two-step verification requires a person to use more than one form of verification to access an account. It's a much stronger form of account protection that can greatly reduce identity theft and unauthorized access to sensitive information since most accounts become compromised from new or unknown computers or devices.

Here's how to turn on Two-step verification on LinkedIn
